

Digging Safely Starts With A Call

Whether you are a professional excavator, contractor, engineer or utility owner, you play an important role in keeping people safe with every dig. Laws governing excavation vary by state, and they can be confusing. Answering the question, "Do I have to call 811?" can be difficult if you don't understand your local laws and the services provided by your One Call Center.

One Call Centers are intended to be the communication link between the excavator or planner and the underground facility operators. It is the responsibility of the utility owners to locate and mark underground facilities. Operators may use their own employees to perform locates, or they may hire a private company to perform the locate marks.

Prior to digging, call 811 or use the state-specific information provided here to be routed to your local One Call Center. Give the center as much accurate detail as possible, and white line the area where you will be working. In a few days, the utility will send a locator to mark the approximate location of underground lines, pipes and cables, so you'll know what's below – and be able to dig safely. This is a free service provided by your utilities.

This directory is presented for informational purposes only. One Call Center information and laws are subject to change. Consult your state's website for additional information regarding online locate requests. Note that notification times typically exclude weekends and holidays.
